

Berry Gets Top Mark

Berry Recruitment in Birmingham has appointed Mark Reynolds as its new operations manager. The branch works in the industrial, driving, catering and cleaning sectors but from the new year is adding health care to its portfolio.

Previously to joining Berry, Mark ran his own business specialising in recruiting in health care and sees it as a growing part of the recruitment industry. He anticipates an improving economy across all sectors in the Midlands during 2016 and will be seeking to add to his own staff in due course.

When Mark had the opportunity to join Berry Recruitment he had little hesitation in becoming part of the fast-growing group. He said: "I have worked in this area for a number of years and I'm very familiar with the region. After selling my share of the firm I ran I was offered the role at Berry and jumped at the chance.

"Berry really is a great company to work for and although it is large and ambitious, it has a family feel about it. It's lovely to come in each day and have a bit of office banter. Having experience in the health care sector it made sense to add that to the specialities of the branch and from the new year we'll be recruiting health care assistants at first.

I have a great team here and there is certainly work out there and increasingly companies are using agencies to recruit the necessary staff."

Berry Recruitment Group (BRG) has 30 branches across the country and achieved turnover approaching £60m during 2015.
